

Pershing's Home
Town Greet's Most Famous Son With Pride and Enthusiasm

The Pershing home in Laclede, flag bedecked. The crowd of townsfolk is waiting for the General to finish his old time turkey dinner and come out to greet them. An impromptu reception was held on the porch afterward.
Copyright, Underwood & Underwood.

Warren Pershing, the General's only son, and Miss Mary Pershing, in front of the old home in Laclede, Mo., awaiting General Pershing's arrival.
Copyright, Underwood & Underwood.

Close up picture of a wildcat caught by a moving picture man in the wilderness. The beast, snarling at the lens, has one paw poised for a blow.
Copyright, Rothacker Film Co.

General Pershing in centre of admiring crowd of Laclede neighbors on the main street, soon after his arrival. He personally greeted dozens by name and inquired after many old friends.
Copyright, Underwood & Underwood.

Rocky Mountain goats in the wild Canadian mountains finally caught by the camera man. This unusual photograph took weeks to secure and only was obtained by the moving picture operator getting far above the herd. A party of guides approached the goats from below and the photographer got a film of them as they passed his ambush.
Copyright, Rothacker Film Co.

Another remarkable photograph of wild goats in the Canadian Rockies. The wary animals seldom permit men to get within 500 yards of them and it took weeks of study of their habits and the hardest kind of work to get moving pictures of them.
Copyright, Rothacker Film Co.